From: Steven McGeady [mcg]
Sent: Tuesday, September 19, 1995 2:58 PM
To: jim@netscape.com
Cc: pmarca@netscape.com; jimb@netscape.com
Subject: Intel/Netscape

DEFENDANT'S
EXHIBIT

3726

Jim - I hear that Jim Barksdale and you had a good meeting with Andy "Mad Dog" Grove. He's asked me to follow-up with you. As I mentioned to Marc when he was up, folks at Intel are chomping at the bit to swarm all over you - our processor guys, our Internet product guys, our (my) lab guys, etc. Andy mentioned a late October target for a full processor roadmap debrief plus whatever additional agenda items you wanted.

I'd like to get your impressions of the meeting and a sense about how to move forward, and a sense of when you'd like to target the meeting. In addition, Marc and I are having lunch on Thursday to talk further about Netscape/Lab engagement (on video, 2.5D, etc) and general issues.

Also, I spoke at length to Bill Joy and Mike Clary last week. Anything you'd be willing to share vis. your Java strategy would be of interest to us. I'm going to try to move quickly on that front.

In any case, thanks for pursuing and having the meeting with Andy - he's beginning to understand the Internet's strategic importance, and more importantly, the importance of our support for Netscape. I look forward to working more with you.

S. McGeady

DEFENDANT'S
EXHIBIT
1811